

DR RAJAB INTERVIEWED ON SICKLE CELL DISEASE BY STANDARD GROUP

Sickle cell disease is a common hemoglobinopathy in Kenya that is being managed by haematologists within the country. UON haematology professionals play a key role in dissemination of information to the general public. Dr Rajab, a key haematologist gives information regarding the disease prevalence, complications and general management. The university continues to support patients through various mechanisms – media, conducting clinics and in educating the general public.